

UUFA Covenant from Leadership

We, the Leadership of the Unitarian Universalist Fellowship of Athens, in covenant with the Reverend Alison Eskildsen, commit ourselves to be open, honest, and loving as we work together, grow together, and stay together transforming lives and building the Beloved Community. In living this covenant we will

- help our chosen minister in her work to challenge our congregation to develop deeper spiritual roots;
- support one another with compassion and understanding;
- maintain open communication;
- commit to actively participate in the life of our congregational community; and
- extend our collective outreach to be visible and active as a congregation in the broader community.

We enter this covenant as leaders, willingly, with optimism and with the intent of modeling community life based on our shared values.

UUFA Covenant from Minister and Staff

Guided by our Unitarian Universalist principles and by the vision and mission of the Unitarian Universalist Fellowship of Athens, we the staff covenant with the UUFA leadership to:

- be respectful and considerate in our work together, always striving to improve
- assume the best of intentions in all that is said and done
- examine our perspectives when right relations may be at risk
- face new challenges with optimism and a collaborative spirit
- be open, honest, and communicate directly with you at all times
- be responsible and professional in our service to UUFA
- encourage joy and offer support in our shared ministry
- grow with you in spirit and invoke deeper connections among us

In the spirit of love and wholeness, we promise to hold ourselves accountable to this covenant with you and with each other.
